1. The Statue of Liberty, arguably one of New York City's most iconic symbols, is a popular tourist attraction for first-time visitors to the city. This 150-foot monument was gifted to the United States from France in order to celebrate 100 years of America's independence. The statue is located on Liberty Island, and it is accessible by taking a ferry from either Battery Park in New York City or Liberty State Park in Jersey City.

3. Could there be a place for robots in education? British education expert Anthony Sheldon predicts robots will do the main job of transferring information and teachers will be like assistants. Intelligent robots will read students' faces, movements and maybe even brain signals. Then they will adapt the information to each student. It is not a popular opinion and it is unlikely robots will ever have empathy and the ability to really connect with humans like another human can.

4. Most people know yoga as a kind of exercise which aims at developing strength and flexibility. However, yoga is really about more than just exercise. The history of yoga goes back at least 5,000 years, and some people claim it is nearer 10,000 years ago. It was first developed in Northern India and at this stage was a spiritual as well as a physical form of exercise, connected with both Hinduism and Buddhism.

5. 'Holi' is an ancient Hindu festival that originated in India and Nepal and is now celebrated in many places around the world. The date changes each year depending on the full moon, but it is held some time between the end of February and the middle of March, and lasts a night and a day. It also represents the arrival of spring and the victory of good over evil. An important part of the celebration is forgiving anyone who has upset you and repairing any broken relationships. 'Holi' is sometimes called the festival of colours.

6. For most people life is getting busier and busier. People are working longer hours and bringing work home. All this can make us stressed, and 'mindfulness' (a kind of meditation) can be a way of reducing this stress. Research shows that 'mindfulness' reduces stress and depression. It can help you to concentrate, have a better memory and to think more clearly. It can also help people to manage pain better and to improve their sleep, and it can even help you lose weight.

- Chocolate was first used as a drink over 3,500 years ago in Central America. It was very popular with the Mayans and the Aztecs, who mixed cocoa beans with vanilla or chilli peppers. In fact, cocoa beans were so important to them that they were used as money. Cocoa was first grown in Ecuador, which was, for a long time, the world's number-one producer of cocoa beans. It is still one of the top ten producers of the beans, but nowadays more than 70 per cent of cocoa beans come from West Africa.

8. The White Cliffs of Dover are one of the most beautiful places on the English coast, and in good weather, you can see them from France. They formed about 90 million years ago, this part of the British Isles was not land it was under the sea. The weather was much warmer than today, and millions of very small organisms lived in a huge tropical sea. When they died, their shells formed thick layers under the water that slowly changed into a soft white rock called chalk over million years.
